He addressed them in s friendly, conversational and withal eloquent manuer about three quarters of an nour. The boys were wonderfully pleased with the event, and considered it an experience only less sweet than that of reaching their several homes.

Pic Nic .- Owing to the crowded state of our columns we have omitted to notice a very pleasant pic-nic enjoyed by the St. Clair Street Boys and Girls' Intermediate Schools, at Berea on Saturday last. The Toledo Road generously furnished the transportation free, and Mr. Swan, of the Toledo Boad, and Mr. Murphy, of Beres, exerted themselves to the utmost to furnish enjoyment for the children, which they seemed to appreciate highly. They are especially grateful to Mr. Swan.

The man seemed selfavolved, unconscious and, in a word, horoughly pre-occupied.

He has a fi e figure, is ta'l, slim, and wears an extremely nervous sepect. The photographers give his head with considerable correctness, although art has given him a more Websterlan brow then sture allows. His head is massive, broad, high and deep. His eye is full and of a szel color, we judged in the gas light. THE DE KATOW AND WEILL CONCERT.—The Keeping house of ill-fame.

Extreme heat evidently prevented many Residing in house of illfrom attending the superior concert last night. M'lie Helenede Katow displayed capabilities of the violincello never before developed in this city. It is scarcely less a developed in this city. It is scarcely less a pleasure to see her than it is to hear her play. While she peculiarly brings out the ense expressiveness of the instrument, she by Abusing Family..... no means fails, at times, to evoke its power. Her style, without being masculine, has not a tinge of elfominacy about it. The spirit and decision of her execution sometimes fall a little into brusqueness, but she makes no effort at capricious embellishment. There is throughout a purity and roundness of tone, varied only by a judiciously employed tremelo, which gives almost the expressiveness of the human

She was honored with frequent encores, The vocalist, M'me Henrietta Behrens, is a charming ballad singer. Her voice, if not of more than usual compass, presents a most even cultivation throughout. Her memo atest date, and, beside these, periodicals tones are deliciously fresh and full; while her extreme upper ones are surpassingly assortment of various fancy articles. We sweet and pure. She made a most enviable impression on her hearers. The star of the troupe, however, is the pinnist, Mr. James Webli, of whom we cannot speak in too high terms. He has a command of his left hand which is marvelous, and which renders him more of a hovely by far than M'me De Katow. He is an artist in the most comprehensive sense of that term. His walk across the stage is slouchy, and would almost seem so be proof concusive of the absence of animation and vigor.
